Dear project partners, colleagues, and fellow members in the field of civil security and disaster risk management,

The three practitioner networks, DARENET, MEDEA and IFAFRI are inviting to a Joint-Network event to provide a platform for an end-to-end-perspective on Early Warning Systems.

Stakeholders working on all aspects of people-centred Early Warning Systems (risk knowledge, monitoring and warning service, dissemination and communication, response capability) are encouraged to focus on links between technologies, processes and decision making. Session topics are among others:

- Early Warning across borders: International standards and procedures
- Early Warning System assessment processes
- Interaction between forecasters and disaster managers
- Visual and communication standards
- Involving first responders and local entities in forecasting and warning
- Early Warning and Training

The agenda will be published soon on all project websites. Please register (link above) to receive further practical information details. With any questions please contact regine.gerhards@thw.de or nico.hybbeneth@thw.de

The hosting practitioner networks foster innovation and exchange in civil protection and disaster management. Thus, the conference aims to create synergies regarding innovation uptake, (cross-border) cooperation and capability gap analysis through a combination of their activities.

We look forward to your participation!
